

and women of organized labor in Alameda County as this year's "Unionist of the Year," an honor granted each year by the Alameda County Central Labor Council.

Jack Henning has dedicated his life to improving the lot of working men and women throughout the United States. As a young union member, he fought to integrate his local union. His leadership and skills were recognized early, and he was put to work as a union representative for organized labor.

Twenty-one years after graduating from St. Mary's College, he became the director of the California State Department of Industrial Relations—1959–62. His public service career would include contributions as United States Under Secretary of Labor, 1962–67 and United States Ambassador to New Zealand, 1967–69. These extraordinary achievements for one from a working class background allowed the entire Nation and, indeed, the world to witness the skill, vision, and leadership for which Jack has become legendary. They are a testament to the fact that all of our citizens can achieve great goals when the resources and support are available to them.

Jack has made many other public contributions as well—serving on the board of regents of both the University of California and Lone Mountain College (San Francisco) and the board of trustees of St. Mary's College. He has served on several San Francisco City and County commissions and is the past president of both the San Francisco Archdiocesan Council of Catholic Men and the St. Mary's College Alumni Association.

Since 1970, Jack has been the executive secretary-treasury of the California Labor Federation, AFL-CIO, and one of the Nation's most respected labor leaders. Under his leadership the labor federation has assumed its rightful place in the coalition of forces that have fought for civil rights for all Americans and an end to apartheid in South Africa. Labor under his leadership helped to secure representation rights for the Nation's farm workers. And, in league with ethical visionaries such as Dr. Martin Luther King, Jack Henning helped to bring the California labor movement into the effort to end our terrible involvement in the war in Indochina.

In this time when we despair so much of a loss of public compassion, diminution of public spiritedness, and the demise of the social contribution, Jack Henning's life continues to shine as a beacon of moral commitment. He is truly one of the Nation's heroes—a man who has without fail pursued equality, justice, and a fair share for working men and women throughout his distinguished career.

I am very proud to share this brief account of the significant career of a very public servant with my colleagues and I commend it as an example for us all.

TRIBUTE FOR CHIEF MASTER SERGEANT FRED M. BEARD

HON. G.V. (SONNY) MONTGOMERY
OF MISSISSIPPI

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, January 25, 1996

Mr. MONTGOMERY. Mr. Speaker, I ask colleagues to join me in paying tribute to Chief Master Sergeant Fred M. Beard, who will be retiring from the Air Force after 30 years of faithful service. The chief is culminating his service to the United States as a noncommissioned officer in charge, Airman Management Branch, Airman Assignments Division, Directorate of Assignments, Headquarters Air Personnel Center, Randolph Air Force Base, TX.

During his career, Chief Beard consistently demonstrated the highest standards of leadership and management expertise in effecting major changes in the management of base closures, unit activations and deactivations, retraining, and the integration of computer programs to implement new policies in support of enlisted assignments.

His dedication and commitment were evident when he took the lead in the complete reorganization and reengineering effort for the Airman Branch ensuring each section was structured and aligned with the appropriate personnel to meet the challenges for the future.

Chief Beard unselfishly volunteered his assignment expertise as a member of the Air Force Budget Review team that was charted to conduct a systematic "cradle-to-grave" review of the process and provide viable recommendations to reduce annual expenditures. His ability to analyze all reassignment processes and provide viable recommendations to reduce costs were key to the success of this review team.

Chief Beard's accomplishments culminate a long and distinguished career in the service to our Nation and the U.S. Air Force.

FAREWELL AND THANK YOU TO INDIA'S AMBASSADOR RAY

HON. ROBERT E. ANDREWS

OF NEW JERSEY

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, January 25, 1996

Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Speaker, I would like to bid farewell to a close friend in the diplomatic community, Ambassador Siddhartha Shankar Ray of India. Ambassador Ray's work here has greatly improved the relationship between the United States and India. During his tenure, he focused not only on government-to-government relations, but on business-to-business relations as well. He returns to India to run for elected office, and I am sure he will serve his constituents well.

Ambassador Ray is no stranger to elected life. Before coming to Washington both he and his wife served as Members of Parliament. He served in both majority and minority positions in his home state of West Bengal, and served as the Minister of Education, Social Welfare, and Culture in the Indian Cabinet. Before his appointment as Ambassador to the United States, he served as Governor of Punjab.

Ambassador Ray has always understood that good relations with the United States would have to be built upon with more than just political diplomacy. He has focused a considerable amount of his efforts on improving business relations between our two nations. Following the dramatic economic reforms instituted by Prime Minister Rao in 1991, Ambassador Ray worked hard to encourage United States companies to go into India. He knew that having American business leaders meet their Indian counterparts would improve relations.

Because of his efforts, a number of high-level American officials traveled to India to promote United States investment there. Commerce Secretary Brown and Energy Secretary O'Leary both led delegations that succeeded in finalizing multibillion-dollar deals. From India, both the Prime Minister and the Finance Minister came to spread a message of opportunity and goodwill.

I join with my colleagues in thanking Ambassador Ray for his service, and I wish both him and his wife happiness in the future.

AWARDING CONGRESSIONAL GOLD MEDAL TO RUTH AND BILL GRAHAM

SPEECH OF

HON. BOB CLEMENT

OF TENNESSEE

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, January 23, 1996

Mr. CLEMENT. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of H.R. 2657, legislation which would award a Congressional Gold Medal to Ruth and Billy Graham. In a time when we are searching for leaders to show us the way back toward the values of community, hope, faith, and character, Ruth and Billy Graham stand among us as the embodiment of that kind of leadership. For over 60 years, together they have worked in a nonpartisan way to bring reconciliation, justice, peace, and salvation to the people and leaders of America and the world. As they have sought to follow the will of Jesus Christ in their lives and lead many toward faith, they are living sacraments of God's love and the highest American ideals.

It is no wonder that the Grammys consistently rank among America's most respected people. When numerous ministries and their leaders have disappointed us with their insincerity and greed, the Billy Graham ministries stand as an unfailing rock of integrity and conviction. When a majority of evangelical ministers were content to preach a message of salvation from within their church walls while ignoring social issues like racism and poverty, Billy and Ruth Graham, looking deep into the heart of the Gospel they proclaimed, stepped into the public arena to confront its greatest evils with love and truth. When most of us are content to settle for partisan bickering and alienation, Billy and Ruth Graham have served America's Presidents and the world's leaders in our times of greatest crises without regard to party or platform. Truly, they are a man and woman of and for our times.

My father and mother, the late Frank G. and Lucille Clement, found faithful friends in Billy and Ruth Graham. They visited together on numerous occasions during and after the time my father served as Governor of the State of Tennessee. They often took trips together, and Dr. Graham begged Dad to leave politics and join the Billy Graham crusades. My Dad was a man steeped in biblical knowledge—he even taught a Sunday School class while he was Governor. My father assisted Dr. Graham with his crusades in Nashville, but also around the country. Dad was honored by Dr. Graham's invitation, but his calling lay in politics, not preaching.

Dad asked the Tennessee poet Peck Gunn to work with Billy Graham on the road, and together they organized train crusades originating from Nashville, TN and stretching across the country. These were memorable moments for the crusades as the good news made its way across the heartland carrying God's spokesman.

Dr. Graham's loyalty and friendship toward my family has endured now for a half century. Just recently, my mother, Lucille Clement, passed away after 75 beautiful years. Several years ago, Mother visited Ruth at the Graham home in Montreat. My mother spoke often of how she was blessed by this time well spent. So, upon my mother's death, Dr. Graham issued a statement to the press of his great love and friendship for my mother and our family. I was very grateful.

For these reasons and more, it was my pleasure to work with Representative CHARLES TAYLOR to invite our colleagues to sign on as cosponsors of this important legislation which will record for history our admiration and highest honor for these two servants of God and the world.

I call upon my colleagues today to support this bill which awards the Grahams with the highest honor of the U.S. Congress, but an award much too inadequate for this couple. I am reminded today of how the writer of the New Testament book of Hebrews describes the heroes of our faith. These heroes, like Billy and Ruth Graham, are those "of whom the world is not worthy."

CONSTRUCTED WATER CONVEYANCE REFORM ACT, 1996 k of Hebrews describes the heroes of our faith.

SPEECH OF

HON. JAMES A. HAYES

OF LOUISIANA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, January 23, 1996

Mr. HAYES. Mr. Speaker, last May, I stood in this very well and expressed my belief that clean water is for people—people who believe more in their State and community than in Federal mandates and regulations. I was pleased to see that the House endorsed these precepts as we overwhelmingly passed this Corrections Day legislation.

There are many rice farmers in south Louisiana, and many more in the district of my good friend from California, Congressman CONDIT, who irrigate their fields or transport agricultural wastewater to treatment plants by utilizing man-made ditches. Although the number of these systems in Louisiana has dwindled over the last decade, the cost of planting with such canals is approximately half of the cost of the current most common irrigation method—pumping private well water.

Among the reasons for the aforementioned switch from low-cost to high-cost irrigation were undoubtedly costs added by requirements of the Clean Water Act. The current law compels States to establish water quality standards for waters of the United States. Water quality standards identify designated uses such as swimming, fishing, and drinking and criteria necessary to achieve these uses. Incorrect past interpretations have required farmers to meet water quality standards for swimming, fishing, and drinking, uses beyond the intentions for many man-made water conveyance systems.

H.R. 2567, the Constructed Water Conveyances Reform Act, is intended to afford States necessary flexibility in setting water quality standards, if purposes of man-made water conveyances are not compatible with designated uses and were never meant to support recreation or aquatic life. I am also pleased that this legislation, as the first to come under the scrutiny of the Unfunded Mandate Reform Act, should reduce costs to States and local jurisdictions.

These provisions are virtually identical to language which passed the House by a widespread bipartisan majority as part of H.R. 961, the Clean Water Act amendments. H.R. 2567 is an extremely non-controversial and commonsense solution to yet another overbearing regulatory problem for our Nation's farmers.

TRIBUTE TO THE LATE HONORABLE BARBARA JORDAN

SPEECH OF

HON. EDDIE BERNICE JOHNSON

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, January 24, 1996

Ms. EDDIE BERNICE JOHNSON of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I rise in remembrance of a wonderful woman and former Member of Congress. Barbara Jordan passed away on Wednesday, January 17, 1996, and all of Texas will miss her dearly.

She was born into poverty during the Depression in Houston's fifth ward, the most segregated neighborhood in Texas. As a young politician, she earned and demanded respect among experienced politicians at the top of power in Texas which sealed their great respect for her.

She served well in the House of Representatives and subsequently as a teacher at the University of Texas. Most recently, she gave much of her time as the Chairwoman of the U.S. Commission on Immigration. I will always remember her efforts to unite her community, the State of Texas and the Nation as a whole.

Barbara Jordan may have been best known for her participation in the Watergate hearings, but she will always be remembered by Texans as a leader and a teacher. She was a strong proponent of teaching English and American history in order to bring all of us together as Americans. She will be remembered by many of us for different reasons. Many will remember her as a colleague, and many as a teacher.

One Saturday in June 1972, Barbara Jordan was "Governor For A Day" in the State of Texas. I am still amazed at the record number of people of all races that converged on the State capitol that day. Also I will remember her close work with Oscar Mauzy, Ms. Jordan's fellow fifth ward of Texas resident.

Barbara Jordan followed her conscience and did what she thought was right. When she spoke everyone listened, and when people spoke to her, she listened to them.

She will be missed by all of us. Texas and the Nation has lost a friend. But her wisdom, I hope, will continue to be heard and felt in the halls of Congress and around the Nation.

TRIBUTE TO THE LATE HONORABLE BARBARA JORDAN

SPEECH OF

HON. CARRIE P. MEEK

OF FLORIDA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, January 24, 1996

Mrs. MEEK of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I am deeply saddened to hear of Barbara Jordan's untimely death.

When she spoke with her Jehovah-like voice, it was like a powerful voice from on high. She was a great American patriot whose dedication to public service and unshakable faith in, and love of, the Constitution served her well, earning her national recognition during the Watergate impeachment hearings. When she spoke of the Constitution, her tremendous voice resonated and made it sound like the Founding Fathers themselves were speaking.

She personified the principles of ethics, justice, and compassion.

Her untimely death is a major loss to the citizens of this great Nation, particularly as we seek to resolve the difficult public policy questions confronting our country. We have lost an outstanding public servant. We will miss her advice and counsel. She leaves a great legacy that challenges all of us to rededicate ourselves to the principles of freedom and equality for all Americans.

With her eloquent voice, she spoke for ordinary Americans in a language that all could understand. To those who felt disheartened, she made them believe that they too were included in the American dream.

She will be a constant reminder of the power of integrity and fairness.

I will always remember her. The Nation has lost a treasure and a powerful friend.

THANK YOU FOR FUNDING LIHEAP

HON. BERNARD SANDERS

OF VERMONT

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, January 25, 1996

Mr. SANDERS. Mr. Speaker, I want to offer my complete gratitude to the House of Representatives and the leadership for their support of full-funding for the Low-Income Energy Assistance Program [LIHEAP] to be allocated to States immediately. Last night I delivered the following letter to the chairman of appropriations, which was signed by 154 Members of Congress, asking for the immediate release of the $190 million remaining in fiscal year 1996 allocation for LIHEAP:

Hon. BOB LIVINGSTON,
Chairman, Committee on Appropriations, Capitol, Washington, DC.

DEAR CHAIRMAN LIVINGSTON: As you know there is approximately $190 million remaining in FY 1996 allocation for the Low-Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP). When a continuing resolution is developed on January 26th, we would very much appreciate your releasing 100 percent of these funds immediately.

While $810 million in LIHEAP funds have been released so far this year, these funds are not even half of the LIHEAP monies allotted to the states in FY 1994 and significantly less than the $1.3 billion allocated in
